The Brahmananda Narayana Hospital (BNH) has long recognized

the importance of fostering a supportive community for its patients. To commemorate its 15-year milestone in pioneering excellence in cardiac surgery, BNH organized a heartwarming event aptly named the Patient Connect Meet Program. The program's primary objective was to create a forum where post-surgery patients could meet, share experiences, and garner support on their journeys toward continued heart health.

Central to the event were presentations by Dr. Perwaiz Alam, a renowned cardiac surgeon at BNH. His talk provided a glimpse into the future of cardiac care, assuring patients of the hospital's unwavering commitment to adopting cutting-edge methodologies for better results and reduced recovery times.

Another key component of the program was the discussion on lifestyle modifications after cardiac surgery. Maintaining heart health post-recovery can be challenging, and Dr. Alam shed light on practical strategies to aid this transition. Recommendations on dietary changes, exercise regimens, and stress management techniques were shared, emphasizing the importance of holistic wellness in preserving cardiac health.

Moreover, the event focused on the critical aspect of preventing future cardiac issues. Timely check-ups, adherence to prescribed medications, and awareness of early warning signs were highlighted as essential measures for safeguarding against recurrent heart conditions. The presentation underscored that recovery extends beyond the surgical process; it is an ongoing commitment to a heart-healthy lifestyle.

The Patient Connect Meet Program successfully established a sense of community among attendees, reinforcing that they are not alone in their health journeys. By exchanging personal stories and experiences, patients found not just support, but also inspiration from each other. The event exemplified BNH's
