National Dress Day

MARCH 6TH

A-line, swing dresses, tunic and sheaths. Princess dresses, tent dresses, strapless or empire waist. Whether retro or vintage, minimalist or mermaid, babydoll or kimono, all of these styles of dresses are amazing and fun to enjoy. No matter what the style of dress or the preferences of the women who are wearing them, National Dress Day is here to celebrate each and every one!

Certainly, the concept of dresses started out as a functional way for people to cover their bodies. Togas, shifts, robes, and wrap dresses all find their place as part of the origins of dresses. Originally worn by both men and women, eventually the convenience of trousers became the preferred garb of choice for men, but women were still expected to wear dresses.

By the 14th and 15th centuries, in Europe at least, dresses became not only a functional way for a woman to cover her body but also started to become part of fashion trends. Covered in various embellishments and paired with extravagant accessories like hats and capes, dresses have continued to evolve ever since. And even though women have been rocking pants on a regular basis for several decades now, there's just something extra that can make a woman feel feminine and beautiful when she chooses to wear a dress.

National Dress Day was founded by fashion and dress designer, Ashley Lauren. It was first celebrated in 2016 to draw attention to the beauty of dresses, reliving and celebrating the memories that happen while wearing them. Ashley Lauren is a designer that focuses on formal wear, from prom and pageant dresses to wedding gowns, particularly with the purpose of accentuating a woman's curves.

Today, National Dress Day can be celebrated in a variety of ways, whether by simply wearing a favorite comfortable dress to work for the day or going out on the town in the evening, dressed up to dance! It's a day to embrace the beauty and versatility of dresses.

National Dress Day is celebrated on March 6 every year. In 2024, National Dress Day will occur on a Wednesday. So, mark your calendars and start planning your outfit to celebrate this special day dedicated to dresses!

National Dress Day

Whether you prefer a classic A-line dress that flatters your figure, a playful swing dress that twirls with every step, a chic tunic or sheath dress for a sophisticated look, or even a princess dress that makes you feel like royalty, National Dress Day is the perfect occasion to showcase your personal style and express yourself through fashion.

From the timeless elegance of retro and vintage dresses to the modern simplicity of minimalist and mermaid styles, there is a dress for every taste and occasion. Whether you love the youthful charm of a babydoll dress or the graceful flow of a kimono-inspired design, the options are endless.

On National Dress Day, take a moment to appreciate the artistry and craftsmanship that goes into creating these beautiful garments. Dresses have the power to make us feel confident, feminine, and beautiful. They can transform an ordinary day into something extraordinary and memorable.

So, whether you're planning to wear a dress that holds sentimental value and brings back cherished memories or trying out a new style that makes you feel like a fashion icon, National Dress Day is the perfect opportunity to celebrate the joy of dressing up and embracing your unique style.

Remember, it's not just about the dress itself, but the way it makes you feel. So, on National Dress Day, let your inner fashionista shine and celebrate the beauty of dresses in all their forms!
