The summit's Presidential Roundtable, titled From Vision to Action, convened higher education leaders to explore strategic pathways for cross-border collaboration, research excellence, and innovation ecosystems.

Dr. Dhruv Galgotia, CEO, Galgotias University, represented the institution in focused discussions that highlighted the importance of implementation-led leadership in strengthening ties between Indian and Arab academic communities.

This roundtable facilitated constructive dialogue among university presidents, resulting in commitments toward action-oriented partnerships that promise to enhance global academic alignment and collaborative opportunities.

While addressing the delegates, Dr. Dhruv Galgotia, CEO, Galgotias University, said, “Galgotias University strongly believes that fostering meaningful international partnerships is essential for advancing research, nurturing innovation, and preparing students for global challenges”

“The India–Arab collaboration underscores our shared vision of education without borders. We are committed to contributing to a future where knowledge flows freely and institutions work together to create impact that transcends geography,” he added.

Dr. Galgotia also expressed his appreciation to Dr. Ashwin Fernandes for bringing together leaders and presidents from diverse institutions and extended special thanks to Ajman University for the exceptional planning and execution of the summit.

The summit marks a significant milestone in Galgotias University’s efforts to strengthen international academic networks and promote global leadership in higher education.
