reaffirming our commitment to true Ayurveda. As AVP continues to evolve its product range, it remains committed to blending heritage with modern relevance. Among its latest standout offerings is Kesini Hair Care Range that constitutes Bringadi Thailam, an exotic Ayurvedic hair oil combining the goodness of 4 types of milk for promoting hair growth and restoring scalp health. The new category launch also features AVP Baby Oil, a formulation crafted with virgin coconut oil and carefully selected rare herbs. This nurturing blend supports infant skin care and strengthens the emotional bond between mother and child, reflecting AVP's holistic approach to wellness through every life stage.

Strengthening the Commitment through Targeted Ayurvedic Solutions

As AVP expands into new wellness domains through innovative product lines, it continues to stay firmly rooted in its classical Ayurvedic expertise. The company's commitment to evidence-based Ayurveda is reflected in both its time-tested formulations and scientifically validated solutions, ensuring that traditional wisdom remains at the core of its offerings.

Among the versatile formulations are Cervijith and Lumbajith Capsules, specialized Ayurvedic products that provide targeted relief. Cervijith is designed to provide focused relief for chronic neck pain and stiffness, promoting long-term comfort while Lumbajith offers targeted relief for lower back and spine discomfort, easing tension in the affected areas. These formulations, crafted to manage pain at its root, exemplify AVP's expertise in chronic pain management, reflecting the brand's deep understanding of Ayurvedic remedies tailored to contemporary issues.

AVP places great importance on research and science-backed data, ensuring that its formulations meet modern healthcare standards. One of their key formulations, Febrojith exemplifies this evidence-based approach. A clinical study conducted at Medstar Specialty Hospital, Bangalore, validated Febrojith's efficacy in significantly reducing body temperature and inflammatory markers, such as C-reactive protein (CRP) and erythrocyte sedimentation rate (ESR). The study also demonstrated improvements in immune response, positioning Febrojith as a safer, more effective alternative to conventional antipyretics.

With scientific validation underpinning its formulations, AVP ensures that consumers benefit from safe, effective, and trusted remedies. While venturing into new segments and product categories, AVP's focus on targeted, scientifically backed solutions continues to set it apart in the Ayurvedic healthcare space. In addition, AVPs Talk to Vaidya initiative enhances customer service by offering a personal touch. Instead of automated responses, customers can directly interact with a qualified Vaidya, making the experience more personalised and special.
